Alison Wolf is a pediatric nurse practitioner specializing in the care of newborns and infant nutrition. She received her undergraduate and graduate nursing degrees from UCLA. Alison started her career as a registered nurse in the NICU at UCLA. Continuing her love of infants, she has worked as a nurse practitioner for Newborn Medicine at UC San Diego Health for over 20 years ago. Alison has expanded her role to the Executive Director of the UC Health Milk Bank in support of equitable infant nutrition for all infants. This presentation will discuss the benefits of donor milk, NEC prevention, non-profit milk banking, equitable donor milk access in California, and lactation after bereavement resources.
